REPORT ON PHOTOGRAPHY

ABOUT

An architect is always learning be it in college or out in the field. After an intensive five-year course, students have countless opportunities to explore out in the field. The gates that open are exciting and challenging. From considering doing your practice, step into further studies to gain specializations, to joining private architecture setups, government sector jobs, or being an architectural journalist/photographer, the possibilities are endless.

Architectural photography is not one man's job. The proper approach towards architectural photography is analysing the project first, the story behind it, and elaborate understanding of the design intentions of the architect. So to give a glimpse of the same we have formulated a Photography Club. We teach them about architectural photography as well organize different competition for the same.

OBJECTIVES

- Develop critical understanding of documenting and capturing architecture through photography.
- Create an awareness regarding the effectiveness of photography in design communication.
- To gain knowledge regarding the various methods and methodologies adapted from historical references.
